Lawrence, Jan. 20.—The City Comptroller of Lawrence has ordered all cats in the city to be examined for poison.

consigned by the city horses and cats to prevent an epidemic of poisoning which, it is said, have arisen from infected cats. Mayor William F. White, who for years has been an expert on horses, introduced the order in the council.

QUINCY BOY COASTER RUN OVER BY AUTO

George Paulsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Paulsen of Quincy, was today injured while coasting on a bicycle.

The boy slid down the sharp grade and as the steel crested Woodward avenue an automobile passed over him. It is believed he sustained internal injuries. The name of the motorist is not known to the police.

DENY STEAM TRAWLER CURLEW IS IN DANGER

The steam trawler Curlew, which sent out distress calls by wireless on Sunday afternoon, stating that she was in trouble 250 miles southeast of Boston, has been in no serious danger, according to officials of the Coast Fishing Company, and the report that she was slowly sinking was exaggerated.

GOING OF 'TIGER' ALARMS PEACE CONFEREES

Nitti and Lloyd George Announce Departures as Clemenceau Quits

Paris, Jan. 20.—The sudden eclipse of Georges Clemenceau from the political horizon has thrown the peace conference into greater confusion than ever.

The recent spurt of activity on the part of the "Big Three" is their effort to settle the various outstanding problems, automatically came to an end with the withdrawal of the president of the peace conference, France's "tiger".

As a matter of fact, the conference is in a fair way of dispersing, and it is likely that the problems set to us will be postponed for some consideration by the League of Nations.

Premier Nitti of Italy has already hinted that he cannot wait for a new French premier to take office in association with M. Clemenceau, because the Italian chamber meets January 28.

Premier Lloyd George has openly announced his intention of returning to England within a few days.

It is rumored that M. Poincaré, the retiring President of France, may be chosen in Clemenceau's place as head of the peace conference, the belief being that he alone stands a chance of being elected in that big office.

Over Premier Lloyd George's head, France is loudly denouncing the holding of the presidency of the conference, though exactly what steps the body will assume is at this calling undecided.

MATTAPOISETT TOO MUCH FOR CENSUS TAKER

Population Per Square Mile Decides Enumerator to Retire From Job

New Bedford, Jan. 20.—Mattapoisett is on the map, but the census does not show it. The town, made up of 1,500 souls, has been publicly insulted by an expert—and something will have to be done about it, here in time and story.

A few days ago a dunder young man stepped off the morning train at Mattapoisett and to those who showed sufficient interest to listen he said he was the census enumerator sent down from Quincy to count here and there and eek here and there. He was invited to go about.

Was being a hapless and far-sighted young man, he put down his head of questionnaire in the railroad station and went out to look over the town. The young man looked it over from the far-flung stretches of Mattapoisett Neck and Island Island to the sandy wastes of Crescent Beach.

He asked about the area of the town and the population per square mile. Then he considered the high cost of shoe leather and the fact that would be consumed in traveling from neighborhood to neighborhood.

He did some figuring with the amount he expected to get for each name on the basis of calculation.

And he went away from there and has not come back again.

M. W. Wadsworth, town clerk, got into communication with Joseph T. Darity, Quincy, supervisor of the census in the Eighth Massachusetts district, which includes Mattapoisett.

Mr. Darity said the young man who went to Mattapoisett was discouraged by the job and had retired from the job. Mr. Darity said another enumerator would be sent to Mattapoisett in a few days and if necessary there would be taken some time.

It is not the fact that the census has not been taken yet that discourages Mattapoisett folk, but they are "all right" because a local applicant for the job of enumerator, Mrs. Maude McAfee, was turned down.

CHESTER B. KENFIELD, DEAD

CUSTOMS OFFICER, DEAD

Inspector Chester B. Kenfield, senior officer in the United States custom service at Boston, died today at his home on Bradley street, Dorchester. Inspector Kenfield was born February 15, 1857, and served in the Civil War. He lost a leg in the battle of Antietam. He entered the custom service on December 8, 1881, and was in the service here for more than fifty-four years.

For several years Inspector Kenfield was a boarding officer. In spite of his artificial leg, members of the custom force said today, he climbed the rope ladders as nimbly as any of the inspectors with two sound legs. About one year ago Inspector Kenfield's hip was broken in a fall. He is survived by one daughter.

DOCTORS FAIL TO ENTER NAMES ON ALCOHOL LIST

Baltimore, Jan. 20.—The law has laid up the alcohol medicine business in the city. Doctors cannot prescribe liquor for medicine, as not one has registered according to the provisions of the prohibition law.

No liquor dealers have entered the drug trade.

TER BARES IN DEAN MURDER MYSTERY

East Jaffrey, N. H., Jan. 20.—An index of what went on behind the scenes in connection with the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean, is furnished by correspondence exchanged between citizens of this town and County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard.

The action and taxpayers had to wait the eight months before County Solicitor Pickard announced to submit the Dean case to the Cheshire County grand jury. He claimed that he had elicited real records and could find no precedent to enable him to take such action.

CITIZENS SUSPICIOUS.
It is suggested that a public inquest would be more advantageous. He said grand jury hearings were secret and that an inquest would serve better to lay the public informed as to details.

The selection and citizenship of Jaffrey claim that Pickard must be a member of the bar, that if there was any function by which a grand jury had been created, it was a murder caused by the official dodging of a grand jury inquiry. The following letter, written to County Solicitor Pickard on February 19, 1919, by George W. Dimeon, local druggist, former postmaster and president of the Jaffrey Board of Trade, shows the dissatisfaction of this section months before the Dean case was brought to the attention of the grand jury.

MR. DIMEON'S LETTER.
"Dear Sir:

"Last Monday evening, after about two years' quiescence, owing to the various activities of the Dean case, the Jaffrey Board of Trade held a special meeting open to all citizens to discuss matters relating to town meetings and the Dean case. At this time various citizens were present, and the discussion of various topics lasted nearly three hours.

"As you may well surmise, one of the prominent topics for discussion were the Dean case and the Jaffrey Board of Trade. In the Dean case, the Jaffrey Board of Trade held a special meeting open to all citizens to discuss matters relating to town meetings and the Dean case. At this time various citizens were present, and the discussion of various topics lasted nearly three hours.

"It was very difficult to say how much of the discussion was due to the fact that the Dean case was a murder caused by the official dodging of a grand jury inquiry. The following letter, written to County Solicitor Pickard on February 19, 1919, by George W. Dimeon, local druggist, former postmaster and president of the Jaffrey Board of Trade, shows the dissatisfaction of this section months before the Dean case was brought to the attention of the grand jury.

New Bedford, Jan. 20.—Ernest Affonso, the recluse who died when fire destroyed his home in the Haskell settlement Saturday, informed local citizens that he was engaged to be married to a woman of the name and address of his brother's widow a few days before his death, and told him he had expressed his intention to marry her in the city shortly to become his bride.

Los Angeles, Jan. 20.—The condition of Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, world famous contralto, who is dangerously ill at her winter home at Grandmont, south of here, is slightly improved, although her vitality is such that her friends fear for the outcome.

The singer contracted pneumonia a few days ago while at Stockton, Cal., where she sang for a number of benefits during her stay in Washington, where she was visiting her mother.

Dr. J. H. Valle, her physician, said that although she was better, it would be months before she resumed her work on the concert stage.

something that appeals to the mothering instinct of all women. I know that my first feeling for you was that I wanted to help you. We are all so close that I thought of you as Philip Merton Ware. Are you a 'lover's' person? Are you a conscientious? Have you a heart, I wonder? How much of the man is there underneath that strong frame of yours? Are you going to take just what the things of life are given you in life, and make no return? For the moment, you see, I am forgetting that you are my friend and that I like you. I am thinking of you from the point of view of an actress—as a particular problem. PHILIP

Dangerous, Damaging Waste of Mr. Wilson's Private Wars

EXTRAVAGANCE IN CAPITAL PUT AT 5 BILLIONS

Chairman Good Says Appropriations for Year Mean a Tax of $47 on Every Person in U. S.

Denounces Executives Who Ask Economy and Then Spend Recklessly; Baker a Hoarder

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The estimated requirements of the United States government, not including anything for the Railroad Administration, for the next fiscal year were placed at $2,500,000,000 by Congressman James W. Good, of Iowa, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations. He made the statement tonight before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association in an address advocating a budget system.

This sum, the speaker said, represented a per capita tax of $47, and to collect even a much smaller sum the hand of the tax gatherer would fall heavily on many of the people. He charged many government department heads with extravagance.

BUDGET IS NEEDED. "No press bureau budget plan, nor the British budget system will answer," he said, for the need of an American budget code. He said the taxpayers were becoming more insistent for government fiscal efficiency, and apparently the United States Government was the only great business concern not run along business lines. He added:

"In one breath, the Secretary of Labor asks for $14,000,000 to establish employment agencies throughout the country to help our unemployed and jobs, while another voice his approval of the plan of the Commissioner of Immigration to bring into the United States 100,000 laborers from Porto Rico and the Mexico to supply a labor shortage."

"On the same day that the Attorney-General is seen starting a great crusade against buying anything except the actual necessities for immediate needs we see the Secretary of Agriculture advising and writing the State Highway Commission to buy all kinds of material and machinery for road construction and store it for future use."

BAKER GREATEST HOARDER. "We behold the Treasury Department urging Congress to adopt a generous donation by patriotic citizens of a Southern city of 5,000 acres of land on which to build a hospital. When a generous appropriation is made by Congress to build this hospital we see this same department letting a contract to some of these same patriotic citizens who donated the land."

"That is not all. The contract is set at just double the amount which the Treasury Department estimated it would cost to have the same improvements made by letting out the work to sub-contractors."

"We hear all of the executive departments in one grand finale denouncing the hoarder of the economy of life and threatening to throw him in jail, while at the same time we behold the Secretary of War, the greatest hoarder of necessities in all the world, refusing to dispose of his hoarded stock until commanded by Congress."

Editor of the American:

Congressman Good has written what would make a very good editorial, but he has omitted the chief expense and the worst expense of all that the administration has been incurring, and the good, docile taxpayers of America have been paying.

That is the expense of prosecuting Mr. Wilson's private wars abroad after the war in which the people of the United States and the United States as a nation were interested has been won and ended.

We know how much it cost to make the nation's war, but we were all willing to pay for that because it WAS the nation's war. But we have not been so willing to pay for Mr. Wilson's private wars, which are in no sense the nation's wars and which have not had in the slightest degree the sanction of Congress or the approval of the American people.

Mr. Wilson's private wars have been no cheaper than any other wars, and although they are his private wars, they have never been paid for out of his private purse. He has been dipping daily into your pocket, generous reader, and taking your money to prosecute wars in accordance with his personal prejudices and to make himself a figure in European politics.

And with all the great expense attendant on such conflicts, the expense has not been the main objection to them. There has been and is the objection that the Constitution is being repudiated, the popular will is being flouted, our republican institutions and our essential democracy outraged by petty tyranny at the head of our government.

There is the objection that we have been making war against a new-born democracy in Russia, a democracy undeveloped, immature, imperfect—as most new-born things are—but nevertheless a democracy.

And we have been making that war hand-in-hand with the representatives of the deposed Russian autocracy—the most wicked, cruel, ruthless, bloody autocracy that ever blackened the pages of history.

We have been making it in company with Japan, an imperialistic, military dynasty, whose selfish object is to capture and control and oppress Siberia as it has subdued and oppressed Korea; and whose obvious ultimate purpose is to dominate and unite the yellow races of Asia against Europe and the white races of America.

The blind folly of our course in Asia is, perhaps, the worst phase of this private warfare which Mr. Wilson has been conducting.

The complete discrediting of our high profession of devotion to democracy is another evil phase.

The undermining of our own democratic ideals and constitutional rights here at home is another menacing aspect of the situation.

And the cost of these privatizing, filibustering wars of Mr. Wilson is the last and, perhaps, the least dangerous consideration.

Still, that is damaging enough, because all heavy burdens of taxation are damaging to the welfare of a citizenry and to the development of a country.

It is now announced, of course, that Mr. Wilson's personal wars upon the Russian people, having been wholly unsuccessful, are to be ended and that Mr. Wilson has decided to withdraw our American troops from Siberia.

The English people are compelling the English government to withdraw the English troops from Russia and the Cossack squadrons of Mr. Wilson's Czaristic allies of the old Russian regime are in full retreat before the victorious troops of a people of Russia.

Dictators are at a discount in Europe and America.

Circumstances are solving the situation—circumstances created by the courageous conscience of the plain people everywhere.

Congressman Good has, as we say, written a very good editorial on wasteful extravagance, but he has said nothing and, what is worse, has DONE nothing to eliminate the most dangerous and damaging of all extravagance—the cost to our people in money and in liberty of the prosecution of Mr. Wilson's private wars, of the violation of our popular rights and the contemptuous disregard of our democratic standards and sentiments.

Mr. Good has done nothing, Congress has done nothing, but share the odium of the administration's responsibility, or rather irresponsibility, by cowardly surrender of their own plain sense and vision of their own duties.

Example of New Hampshire Petty Court Justice

The other day two reporters of the Boston American were caused to be arrested after six o'clock in the evening by one Judge Gupitll of Portsmouth, acting as counsel for Mayor Hishop in a suit against two reporters of the Boston American. These men were strangers in the city and knew no one to whom to apply for bonds for release from jail. Moreover, it was evening.

By great effort the agent and the local attorney of the American Surety Company of Portsmouth were sent to the jail on authorization from the general manager of the Surety Company of Boston and offered the bond of this Company of national reputation. Judge Gupitll refused to permit the Sheriff to accept the bond, insisting without right or reason that the two arrested men should obtain what he knew was impossible that night, two sureties having sufficient property to go on their bonds as local men.

The Sheriff preferred to heed Judge Gupitll's demand rather than the advice of counsel for the Surety Company that the offer of the Surety Company's bond was perfectly good and was always accepted and had been accepted by the Sheriff many times before. As a consequence of the attitude of Judge Gupitll and the Sheriff these two men remained in jail all night.

The next day another representative of the American was arrested for the same story for which the two American representatives were arrested the night before, and were tried on Saturday before the same Judge Gupitll sitting as a Municipal Court judge. The counsel for the arrested man objected to Judge Gupitll's sitting under the circumstances. To this objection Judge Gupitll made the following dignified and judicious reply:

"I want you to sit down. You have raised your objections heretofore. You know I am impartial, going to treat you impartially. You sit down. I am hearing these cases. You understand, I want you to sit down. I have heard enough of your cheap guff. I have heard enough from you on that line of argument."

If this is an example of New Hampshire lower court justice some writers who like to have anachronisms as the subject of their articles ought to visit New Hampshire. If there is anything which surpasses this occurrence as a judicial farce we should like to know what it is.

Dr. Maclaurin's Loss

Dr. Maclaurin's remains have been buried. Of course, it is true to say that the good that Dr. Maclaurin wrought will not be buried with his body.

No man ever took less advantage of the opportunity for personal exploitation which the head of a great educational institution like the Technology gave him. But the unfamiliarity of the public with him did not mean that he was a grind on a single track. His activities touched a great many interests and his loss is already greatly felt.

The Morgan Memorial and Its Work

By Randolph Wellford Smith

HAVING over the once in a while fireplace was the oft-repeated motto, "God Hides Our Home." I had hardly digested that when on the other side of the room up croaked another, "There is a Silver Lining to Every Cloud." One of the unfortunates saw me regarding the latter sign with amusement, and he was game enough to announce to the assembly "that it looked as if their silver lining was going to be the wisp of light with the mercury 10 degrees below." For virtuous satire I doubt whether either Thackeray or Sheridan could have surpassed the simple comment of the derelict. The only memento sign that happened to meet my eyes during the tour of the Memorial was hung in the office of the secretary. It was a replica of those living words of Phillips Brooks: "No man has come to true greatness who has not felt in some degree that his life belongs to his race, and that what God gives him He gives him for mankind."

And it breathed the spirit of the whole place.

Work Among Children
The Memorial's work among children is the heart of its institutional life.

I shall never forget the little armies of laughing, happy children about the buildings. Their merry cries rang through the dark corridors like a chime of bells from a church tower. There was no discord for some curious reason—just a peal after peal of rhythmic, musical laughter. It sounded in my ears long after I had left the building. And there were dolls, dolls, dolls everywhere.

When the boys arrive at the Memorial and are opened, out comes a doll's leg, a doll's torso, dolls nearly shattered and bruised beyond repair, apparently. The parts are taken to the doll hospital and assembled just as one might assemble the parts of a motor car. So the children of the Memorial have dolls' palaces and many other toys besides, for that matter. The institution is simply a beautiful haven for children, and they are taught nearly everything within the bounds of human practicality.

There was one lad at work in the doll hospital who stood out in bold relief. His specialty seemed to be udder bears. He had teddy bears in front of him, behind him and piled high in what would have been his lap had he been a girl. His fingers danced on a leg or some dismembered part with a celerity that was startling. So badly crippled is the lad that he has to be carried to his work and then home in the strong arms of some of the students, but there are human interest stories in every nook and corner of the institution—by long odds the most remarkable institution, in the judgment of the writer, in the world today.

Small Endowment
And yet there is but one small endowment of $40,000. Dr. Helms never knows from one place to another how the great plant is to be carried on. Its earning capacity in the industrial plant is large, but the expense of carrying on the many activities, not cashable of which I have enumerated, is enormous. It is astonishing that there are not endowments of millions, for if ever the Spirit of God and His Angels was breathed into institutional achievement, it is to be found in the life of the Morgan Memorial.

Stars and Stripes

The fury of the patient man is a long time in forming.

There's a harp without pedals, but not a key without strings.

Europe should remember, "Providence helps those that help themselves."

Pride of possession is usually measured by how much we pay. A double-priced hat feels better when it is so close to your head.

Some men think they have the courage of their convictions when they merely have the stubbornness of their prejudices.

The British fleet has gone on a five-day trip to Malta. There is news in that dispatch. Lenin is on the Black Sea, and only a thin strip of Polish Russia separates him from welcoming Bulgaria and Turkey. If he could get the Bulgarians, Lenin would have the eastern key to the Mediterranean, and England with the western door, Gibraltar, would think earnestly.

In one prison they made white key, and the still was located in the chapel where the celebrations were held.

In another prison, Sing Sing, the convicts made out fraudulent bills for goods never delivered, and collected several thousand dollars.

When men, thoroughly reformed, devote their energy and ingenuity to good works only what an efficient world it will be.

Watch the fight between Admiral Sims and Secretary Daniels, and study the faces of both men before you pick your winner. One look at Mr. Daniels' jaw and Mr. Sims' whiskers will show you that in the fight coming Admiral Sims will have as good a chance as a new-born child to win.

Friends of Admiral Sims have one comfort in case Mr. Daniels should throw him overboard. He need only swim to England to get a comfortable job. A friendly feeling exists there for anybody convinced that the American navy was inefficient during the late war, and at all times.

The one word, "Chinese," in a dispatch from Copanango, means a good deal to Japan and explains some Japanese anxiety.

The dispatch says that Boholians are throwing large forces on the Leyte front, including Chinese regiments.

If two hundred million Russians should unite with four hundred million Chinese, Russia supplying the enthusiasm, China supplying the intelligence to death, what chance would seventy-five million Japanese have in the consequent proceedings? The conclusion might worry others as well as Japan.

"Big Business" is watching the effort to expel five Socialist senators from the New York Legislature, afraid that if Socialists get their seats it will give an impetus to radicalism. As usual, "big business" looks at the situation from the wrong end. If the five men are deprived of their right to place of business, it will give an impetus to radicalism and increase the Socialist vote.

It seems strange, in days of the flying machine, to read that Lip-ton has arranged date and location for the sailboat race. You suppose the sailboat as dead as a hen's tooth, eh? It is not. There are more sailboats by far than when Polaris was first discovered, paddling up the North River. Old things are crowded out very gently in this world.

As it was a hundred thousand years ago, the cheapest power on earth is the power obtained by holding up a sheet to catch the wind.

On the sixth of next month, "trading in sugar futures" will be resumed. Which means that it will soon be legal to gamble on the price of sugar, and legal to do all you can to put the price up, if your gambling runs that way.

France long ago made a law putting in prison at hard labor any man caught scheming, gambling or plotting in any way to put up the price of life's necessities. If they don't do that in America, here the Ford gambler is scheming, the little fellow goes to the poor house.

Count Arco Valley for political reasons murdered a man in cold blood. When sentence is pronounced he says, "I hate anti-Semitism. I love my Bavaria and hate the Jews. I am a faithful, unswerving and a good Catholic. I was loudly applauded, but the day has gone by when 'I hate the Jews' would justify murder."

Count Arco Valley has had his little say, but he is sentenced to death for murder in the ordinary way, so that his speeches and murders will soon be ended. This shows that civilization actually improves, even under the present radical government of Germany today.

Ludwig of Bavaria, once King, stormed and raged when he heard the allies really demanded the Kaiser. He called it "impudent and impudent."

Charles, once Emperor of Austria, wiser, said nothing.

Ludwig, the gentleman who said that in case the Kaiser didn't hold a job he'd make a good date for the place. The gentleman learns slowly.
